Multi-space parking meters are easy to use

The first of a new generation of smart parking meters have been installed in Minneapolis. The multi-space meter pay stations let you use debit cards, credit cards or coin.

To use the multi-space meters:

- Park in a space marked with a numbered space sign where the old parking meter used to be.

  Note that parking restrictions may apply to your space. These restrictions are located on the space marker in red. The space marker also gives information on hourly restrictions, time and days of week in which metered parking is enforced

- Go to the nearest multi-space meter pay station.

  Most are located in the center of a block, and all are marked with a green MPLS Parking logo.

- Follow prompts located on the four-line LED display which will guide the user to:

  - Enter your space number at the meter, then press enter.

  - Pay for amount of parking time you want.

    The meters will take VISA or Master Card debit cards, credit cards, quarters and dollar coins.

  - Press the green (print receipt) button to complete the transaction.

Note: Keep your receipt!

They don't need to be displayed on dashboards, but it includes your space number and the time of day when your meter time expires. When time is about to expire (provided you haven't exceeded any maximum time limit on your space) you can use the space number on the receipt to get more time at a nearby multi-space pay station.

For more information on Minneapolis parking meters, go to www.minneapolismn.gov/parking or call 311.
